Don't Miss our Thanksgiving FEAST!

Our next meeting is on

Monday, Novemeber 23th

Meeting at 6:30pm

Dinner at 7:15pm

See you there!

Fellowship, Service, and the Season of Thanksgiving

Larry Griffin 32° KSA
Venerable Master

Greetings, Brothers,

I would like to extend a warm welcome to all our Brothers in the Valley. Let us all join in and be part of the Valley as it continues to grow.

We recently enjoyed a fantastic Feast of Tishri at our last meeting, with lots of good food and fellowship.

This month, we will be having our Thanksgiving dinner, with Brother Berry McKinley roasting not one, but TWO turkeys for us! We will have all the trimmings to go with them, so come out and join us for a fantastic meal and plenty of great fellowship. And don't forget to bring your lady, too! The Blue Slipper Club is growing in our Valley.

As the end of the year approaches, there will soon be a changing of the guard. Let us continue to support each other as we work together to make the Orange County Scottish Rite the best it can be.

As you all know, there is still plenty of work ahead of us in the Valley, but let us not forget to enjoy the holidays along the way. If we all do a little here and there, together we can make a real difference. Get involved in your Valley. When you do, you will have the opportunity to get to know your Brothers even better.

NOTICE: Our December CLC Christmas party meeting will be held one week earlier, on Monday, December 21, 2026, so we can give our presents to the CLC kids before Christmas.

A Thanksgiving Table Set for Brotherhood

Barry McKinley, 32°
Wise Master

Dear Brothers of the Orange County Scottish Rite,

As we approach Thanksgiving, I find myself looking forward to one of my favorite gatherings of the year, our annual Thanksgiving dinner. There is something special about this time of year, and I always enjoy the opportunity to share a good meal with our brothers and their families.

Following our stated meeting, we will have the opportunity to gather around the table and enjoy a traditional Thanksgiving dinner. I am especially looking forward to preparing the turkeys again this year. It is something I genuinely enjoy doing, and I hope everyone comes hungry! There is a certain satisfaction in preparing a meal for friends and family, and I cannot think of a better group of people with whom to share it.

I would like to ask everyone planning to attend to please RSVP in advance. Having an accurate head count is particularly important when preparing a meal of this size, and we want to make sure there is plenty of food for everyone. Whether you attend every meeting or have not been able to join us in a while, I hope you will make plans to be there. And of course, I encourage you to bring your loved ones along to enjoy the evening with us.

Thanksgiving also gives us an opportunity to appreciate the friendships and experiences we share throughout the year. Between our degrees, charitable efforts, meetings, and fellowship events, we have had many opportunities to come together as a valley. Each of those experiences contributes something different to our fraternity, and I am grateful for the brothers who make them possible.

As the year begins to wind down and the holiday season approaches, I hope we can all take a moment to appreciate the good things in our lives, the friendships we have made, and the people who make our time together meaningful.

I look forward to seeing everyone at our stated meeting and sharing a wonderful Thanksgiving dinner afterward. Just remember to RSVP so I know how many turkeys to prepare!

What Has Been Entrusted to Us

Joshua S. Price, 32° KSA
Commander of Kadosh

Brethren,

This past Saturday, Brothers from Irvine Valley, Saddleback Laguna, and Veritas gathered at Saddleback for our third Orange County Scottish Rite Fellowship Breakfast of the year. We are grateful to everyone who hosted, planned, promoted, attended, and helped make the morning possible.

The breakfast series brought us to Garden Grove Lodge No. 351, Solomon's Staircase Lodge No. 357, and Saddleback Laguna Lodge No. 672. We held these gatherings at Blue Lodges throughout our Valley so Scottish Rite could meet Brothers where they already gather. Each visit gave us a chance to learn more about one another, strengthen our connection with the lodges, and build better lines of communication and cooperation.

At our October Stated Meeting, we reflected on the Feast of Tishrei. It brought to mind the familiar words about how good and pleasant it is for Brethren to dwell together in unity. We understand that thought more fully when we put it into practice: sitting together, sharing a meal, listening, and making time for one another.

The breakfasts carried the Valley out to the lodges, and our monthly Stated Meetings give Brothers from those lodges a regular opportunity to come together in the Valley. The focused business gives the evening its structure, while dinner and the conversations before and after give us time to catch up, hear what is happening across the Valley, exchange ideas, and make our voices heard. Those parts of the evening work together to keep us connected.

Each Brother brings his own experience, thoughts, and presence. As more of us take part, the conversation gains depth and the shared spirit in the room grows stronger. We meet on the level, and there is something meaningful in feeling that unity as we gather. Our November 23 Stated Meeting is another opportunity to share in it.

If there are programs, educational opportunities, or other ways we can strengthen our ties with the Blue Lodges, let's keep that conversation going. We welcome ideas shared with any Head of Body, our Personal Representative, or directly with me so we can shape our work together.

As Thanksgiving approaches, I am personally grateful for the Brothers who opened their lodge doors, shared their time, and helped bring our Valley together. I look forward to continuing that fellowship with all of you in the year ahead.

From the General Secretary

Jamie Hopkins, 33°
General Secretary

Brethren: We are all enjoying the cooler Fall weather. In October, we had an outstanding Feast of Tishri celebration following a brief Stated Meeting. Thanks to our Junior Warden for the excellent meal. Also, thanks to all of the Brothers who participated in the ceremony. Our November meeting will be on Monday, November 23rd at 6:30 pm at Orange Grove Lodge. We will be having a Thanksgiving meal with turkey and all of the fixings. This excellent meal will again be prepared by Brothers and their wives. This is one of our best meeting and dinner nights of the year. You want to be sure to attend.

Thank you to the many Brothers who have already paid their 2027 dues. Another dues notice mailing just went out from our Supreme Council. These notices can miss recent payments. If you have any questions regarding your dues status, the Secretary's email is gensec@ocscottishrite.org and we will confirm your status. We have our Thanksgiving dinner later this month. And in December, we will be having our Holiday Party for the children who attend our Orange County Childhood Language Center. Santa Claus will be visiting and every child receives a present picked out for him or her.

Hope to see you at our Valley Thanksgiving Dinner on Monday, November 23rd. May you and your family have an outstanding Thanksgiving.

A Season of Gratitude and Fellowship

Erin McKinley
Blue Slipper Club

Happy Thanksgiving from the Blue Slipper Club!

This month, a few ladies are having afternoon tea at the Huntington Library. Thank you Fiona for organizing this.

At our meeting this month, we will be setting the table for our Thanksgiving Dinner with the Valley.

Halloween Fun and Learning at the Childhood Language Center

Leora Shaffer, MACCC-SLP, Clinic Director
RiteCare Childhood Language Center, Orange County

It's the end of October and the clinician's and clients are hard at work. Each child brings with them new experiences for the clinicians, and they are creatively meeting the speech/language needs of each client we serve. Halloween week is always a fun week at the clinic. The team for each day chose a child-friendly costume theme, from Mario Kart and Cars, to children's book themes. The children trick-or-treated in the office and were encouraged to wear their costumes. It was great practice for the real event and brought out a lot of speech and language opportunities.

A Legacy of Giving: Supporting the Scottish Rite's Charitable Missions

Hon. Brother Richard S. Nowacki, 32° KCCH
Western Region Donor Officer
(971) 319-0499 RNowacki@scottishrite.org

Dear Brethren,

As the leaves begin to change colors then fall to ground, and the days become shorter, we are reminded that the year is soon coming to a close. While switching to your favorite cozy slippers and considering your Holiday plans, please keep in mind your ability to make a real difference through charitable giving.

For example:

- If you are 73 Years of age or older you might have Required Minimum Distributions (RMDs) to meet before year end.
- If you are 70.5 years or older you can make a Qualified Charitable Distribution (QCD) directly from your Individual Retirement Account (IRA) to a charity. This satisfies IRS RMD requirements.
- If you have appreciated stock or cryptocurrency, you can transfer part of that value to a Scottish Rite charity and eliminate capital gains tax.
- If you have a Donor Advised Fund, have you ever considered submitting a request to add the Scottish Rite charities to their list?
- You can give any amount on a reoccurring basis via PayPal.

We owe a lot to the Brethren and their ladies who came before us. As members we enjoy many benefits. We enjoy the support and security of the gifts that others left behind. We benefit mankind at large via our Education and Speech Therapy foundations. This is because of the forethought and generosity of those inspired people, who decided to plant a tree for shade that they would not see and by the hands of those working to continue a legacy.

So please consider these aforementioned examples and any others that will allow you to assist us in the abundant patronage of our important Scottish Rite missions.

Sincerely & Fraternally,

Richard S. Nowacki 32° KCCH

Gratitude Is More Than Giving Thanks

Shawn E. Bell, 32°

The Lessons of the Scottish Rite and the Practice of Thanksgiving
Thanksgiving allows us to consider the good things in our lives. We gather with family and friends, enjoy a meal together, and take a little time to appreciate the people who have helped us along the way. For many of us, it is also an occasion to remember those who are no longer seated at the table.

As Freemasons, we ought to be particularly familiar with the idea of gratitude. Our fraternity gives us plenty of reasons to be thankful, and the degrees of the Scottish Rite offer valuable lessons on how to use that appreciation. There is, however, a distinction between being thankful and expressing gratitude. Thankfulness is something we feel. Gratitude is something we can demonstrate.

A man may appreciate the kindness of another without ever saying so. He may recognize the sacrifices made on his behalf without acknowledging them. He may even understand how much he has benefited from others' generosity while giving little thought to what he might do in return. The Scottish Rite encourages us to examine that distinction. Its lessons concerning duty, charity, justice, and our obligations to others remind us that good intentions are only the beginning of a moral life. The real question is what we intend to do with them.

The Lessons We Have Received
Throughout the Scottish Rite degrees, we encounter men faced with questions of loyalty, responsibility, personal sacrifice, and moral courage. Their circumstances may belong to another age, or to the allegorical settings in which our lessons are presented, but the questions themselves remain familiar. What do we owe to those who have placed their trust in us? How should we respond when another person needs our assistance? What responsibilities accompany the privileges we enjoy?

These questions are not confined to any single degree. They appear throughout the philosophical teachings of our Rite, sometimes directly and sometimes through the conduct of the characters whose decisions we are invited to examine. Consider the emphasis placed upon duty in the Lodge of Perfection, one of the four bodies that make up the Scottish Rite. Duty is not always convenient, nor is it necessarily accompanied by recognition or reward. It asks us to fulfill our responsibilities because they are ours. Gratitude gives that lesson a personal dimension.

We have all benefited from the efforts of men who accepted responsibilities that did not promise them anything in return. Someone maintained the lodge, prepared the degrees, taught the candidates, or made certain the next generation of Masons would inherit something substantial. We may never know all their names. Yet we enjoy the results of their labor every time we enter the lodge room or gather with our Brothers at the Valley.

There is something humbling about recognizing how much of what we enjoy was made possible by men who came before us. And there is something equally important about asking what we intend to leave for those who follow.

Charity Begins with Recognition
The Scottish Rite's teachings concerning charity invite us to look beyond ourselves. The lessons associated with the Chapter of Rose Croix, in particular, give considerable attention to the moral responsibilities we bear toward our fellow human beings. Charity, however, requires more than an occasional contribution to a worthy cause. Before we can help another person, we must first recognize that he needs our help.

That sounds simple enough, but we can become so occupied with our own responsibilities that we overlook the people standing beside us. A Brother may be dealing with illness, financial difficulty, or the loss of someone close to him. Another may have become isolated from the fraternity through circumstances beyond his control. Perhaps someone who once attended every meeting has been absent for months, and nobody has thought to ask why.

We cannot always solve another man's problems. Nor should we assume that every Brother wants his personal difficulties discussed among the membership. But we can make a telephone call. We can offer to visit. We can extend an invitation and make it clear that his presence is missed. Sometimes the most meaningful expression of gratitude is simply remembering the man who has given so much of himself to others.

We often speak of charity in terms of what we contribute. There is equal importance in recognizing the humanity of the person receiving it. That is a lesson our fraternity should never allow us to forget.

Remembering the Brothers Who Made It Possible
Every Scottish Rite Valley depends upon men who give their time without expecting much attention. Some are easily recognized. They serve as officers, confer degrees, organize reunions, or represent the Valley at public events. Others perform their work with considerably less ceremony.

They prepare meals, arrange chairs, maintain equipment, help candidates find their way, and remain after everyone else has gone home to make certain the building is ready for the next gathering. These are not glamorous responsibilities. Most of them will never appear in a program or earn a special presentation. Yet without these Brothers, much of what we enjoy as a fraternity would not happen.

When was the last time we thanked them? Not with a general expression of appreciation delivered from the podium, but personally. A handshake, a few sincere words, or an acknowledgment of something specific they have done. There is a difference between telling a room full of men that their service is appreciated and telling one Brother that you noticed what he did. The latter may mean considerably more to him.

And we should remember that gratitude is not reserved for those who hold office or perform the most visible work. A Brother who attends regularly, welcomes visitors, encourages a new member, or takes an interest in someone he barely knows contributes something important to the life of the Valley. These ordinary acts of consideration strengthen our fraternity. We ought to recognize them more often.

Gratitude Beyond the Lodge Room
Last month, I wrote about the value of what I called Pop-Up Service Opportunities. My argument was simple enough. When someone in our community needs a few extra hands, why shouldn't a few Brothers answer the call? Thanksgiving gives me another reason to return to that idea.

We have received something meaningful through our Masonic membership. We have been given opportunities to study, to form friendships, and to work alongside men whose experiences and perspectives may be quite different from our own. Those are privileges, and they come with responsibilities.

If we are grateful for the friendship we have found within the fraternity, we should be willing to extend friendship beyond it. If we appreciate the assistance others have given us, we should be prepared to offer assistance when someone else needs it. And if we believe the lessons of the Scottish Rite have helped us become better men, the people around us ought to see some evidence of that improvement.

Our neighbors do not need to understand the philosophical teachings of the Scottish Rite to benefit from them. A family struggling through a difficult season does not need a lecture about charity. A community organization short of volunteers does not need an explanation of Masonic symbolism. They need someone willing to help.

The same principles that encourage us to care for our Brothers should influence how we treat our friends, our neighbors, and the people we encounter in our daily lives. There is no reason to leave those principles behind when we step out of the lodge room.

The Privilege of Being Able to Serve
We sometimes discuss service as though it were another obligation competing for space on an already crowded calendar. There are certainly times when that is true. Our families, professions, health, and personal responsibilities require our attention. No Brother should be made to feel that his commitment to Freemasonry is measured by how many hours he can volunteer.

But there is another way to consider service. It is a privilege to be in a position to help someone. The ability to give a little time, share a particular skill, or offer assistance when another person needs it is something we can be thankful for. Not every man has the same opportunities. Not every Brother can contribute in the same way. The important thing is recognizing what we can offer and being willing to offer it.

That might mean spending an afternoon helping a charitable organization. It might mean assisting a Brother who can no longer manage a task on his own. It could be as simple as introducing yourself to a new member and making certain he feels welcome.

We need not turn every act of kindness into a Valley project. Nor should we confuse the size of a contribution with its importance. A small kindness offered at the right moment can accomplish more than an elaborate gesture made for the sake of recognition.

Giving Thanks by Giving Something Back
Thanksgiving will soon bring many of us together around tables filled with good food and familiar faces. We will have an opportunity to enjoy the fellowship that makes our Valley such an important part of our lives. I hope we also take a moment to consider the Brothers who have made that fellowship possible.

Some will be seated beside us. Others have moved away, grown older, or passed to the Celestial Lodge above. Their contributions remain part of what we have inherited. We cannot repay every kindness we have received, and gratitude should never become a matter of keeping accounts. But we can remember. We can acknowledge the good that others have done. And when an opportunity presents itself, we can extend that same consideration to someone else.

The Scottish Rite offers much to contemplate regarding our duties as Freemasons. Its degrees challenge us to consider the kind of men we are and the responsibilities we bear toward one another. Thanksgiving offers an occasion to put some of those lessons into practice.

So, this season, thank a Brother who has made a difference in your life. Reach out to someone you haven't seen in a while. Find an opportunity to help a neighbor, or offer a little of your time to an organization doing good work in our community.

We have much to be thankful for. Let's give someone else a reason to be thankful, too.

Personal Representative of the SGIG Orient of California

Ill. Ralph C. Shelton II, 33°

Brethren, as we move into the cooler months of autumn and approach the holiday season, our Valley has a wonderful slate of fellowship, reflection, and community service ahead. Please make note of important upcoming dates and schedule changes for our November and December gatherings.

Our Annual Thanksgiving Feast will be held November 23, 2026, at the stated meeting. Join us for our annual Thanksgiving Feast as we gather around the festive board to celebrate the blessings of brotherhood, family, and community. A special note of thanks goes out to Bro. Barry McKinley, who is generously providing the turkeys for our dinner this year.

Table Topic: During dinner, we will pause for meaningful reflection and discussion on the concept of "thanks" and gratitude as woven into our Scottish Rite degrees. As we share a meal together, we will explore how the lessons of our ritual inspire us to appreciate our brethren and the opportunities we have to serve.

DECEMBER MEETING DATE CHANGE
Our December meeting will be moved to December 21, 2026, the third Monday in December. Please note this is an exception to our usual schedule due to the Christmas holiday. Please mark your calendars carefully.

This evening holds a very special place in our Valley's heart as we host our annual Christmas Party for the children, families, and staff of our Orange County Scottish Rite Language Center.

Witnessing the joy of the children and families we serve is one of the most rewarding experiences of the fraternal year. Attendance is strongly encouraged as we come together to support our Language Center community, celebrate the holiday season, and show our young guests a truly unforgettable evening.

We look forward to seeing you at the festive board in November and sharing in the true spirit of Scottish Rite Masonry together.

Sincerely and fraternally,
